

Ratchet Lashings - What's in a label?

At Sutch Lifting Equipment we have been supplying ratchet lashings for over 30 years. In that time we have seen the market flooded with inferior products; mainly from the Far East, many of which claiming to be EN 12195-2 compliant.

So how do you know that the lashing system you are purchasing, actually meets the European Standard?

Well the first step is to purchase from an ISO 9001 accredited company, the next is to ensure that the assembly has the correct labelling, as the information contained is clearly set out by EN 12195-2.

Below is an example label detailing what information must be included.

QUALITY ASSURED PRODUCT

MANUFACTURED IN THE UK

